“ . . . do I have the right to represent the multitudes who have perished? Do I have the right to accept this great honor on their behalf? I do not. That would be presumptuous. No one may speak for the dead, no one may interpret their mutilated dreams and visions.

It pleases me because I may say that this honor belongs to all the survivors and their children, and through us, to the Jewish people with whose destiny I have always identified.”

Elie Wiesel
Nobel Peace Prize Acceptance Speech
December 10, 1986—Oslo, Norway

Through humility Elie Wiesel packs an effective punch. This soft spoken person has not only become a spokesman for Jewry, but for the world at large. The cloak of the Nobel Peace Prize has not changed the person, but is the key which will open many doors as he continues to dedicate his life's work to helping human rights, freeing Soviet Refuseniks, as well as continuing to teach the younger generations the lessons of the Holocaust.

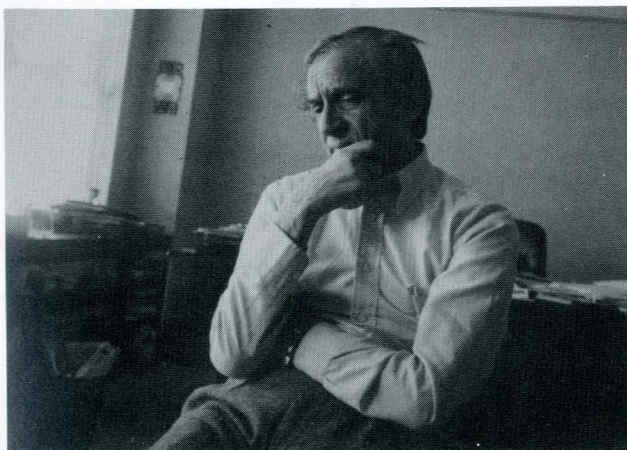

When asked if the Holocaust could happen again he replied, "I don't think so, not the way it happened (pause). Lest we forget, forgetting would be a greater tragedy." As for those who deny the actual existence "they are not worthy of our mention". It is of great importance to better educate the world with emphasis to the young and generations to come about remembering.

Although Mr. Wiesel's plea to President Reagan not to go to Bitburg went unheeded, the overwhelming effect was to turn the attention of millions to aspects of the Holocaust.

Many questions were asked, including one concerning Israel's fate surrounded by a sea of hatred . His reply was "these are questions I have asked and would also like to know the answers to."

In conclusion the message he leaves to students is:

"The burdens are many, it is up to the students to transform them . . . Hopefully into something good".

Aaron Strum
Editor in Chief

Dear Graduates:

It is with a great deal of pleasure and pride that I congratulate you on your graduation from Touro College.

The College's achievements will be defined by your achievements. To the extent that you, our graduates, contribute to the continuity and vitality of Torah and the Jewish community, we will have succeeded. To the extent that you make the world a better place, we will have succeeded as well.

Judging by your predecessors, our expectations are high. Touro alumni have succeeded in a wide variety of fields, including Jewish education, communal service, medicine, law and business, amongst others. Most importantly, many have assumed leadership positions in their Jewish communities, throughout the United States and Israel.

You are members of a Jewish elite, recipients of a superb Jewish and general education. You can make a difference in the world. Do so for the good.

Sincerely,
Dr. Bernard Lander
President

In dedicating the Touro College yearbook to Elie Wiesel, you are honoring the man, the memory, and the mission. However great the man and however penetrating the memory, however persevering the man in evoking the memory of the Holocaust, it is the mission of Elie Wiesel to which you have bound yourselves in this dedication and for which you should commit your lifetime to fulfill.

No one has better stated his mission than the man you have chosen. He is the prophetic leader extraordinaire who implores us to fulfill the great mitzvot, "to remember what Amalek did to us," "to erase the memory of Amalek," and "not to forget." Remember what Nazi Germany did, the acts and the horrors, not the terrifying bestial creatures who performed these acts. Erase the memory of Nazis so that the hellish fiends be eliminated from human history. Do not forget to take action, forthright, swift, and courageous in confronting "the masters, lords and rulers in all lands" to end distress of discrimination and abort any and all attempts at genocide.

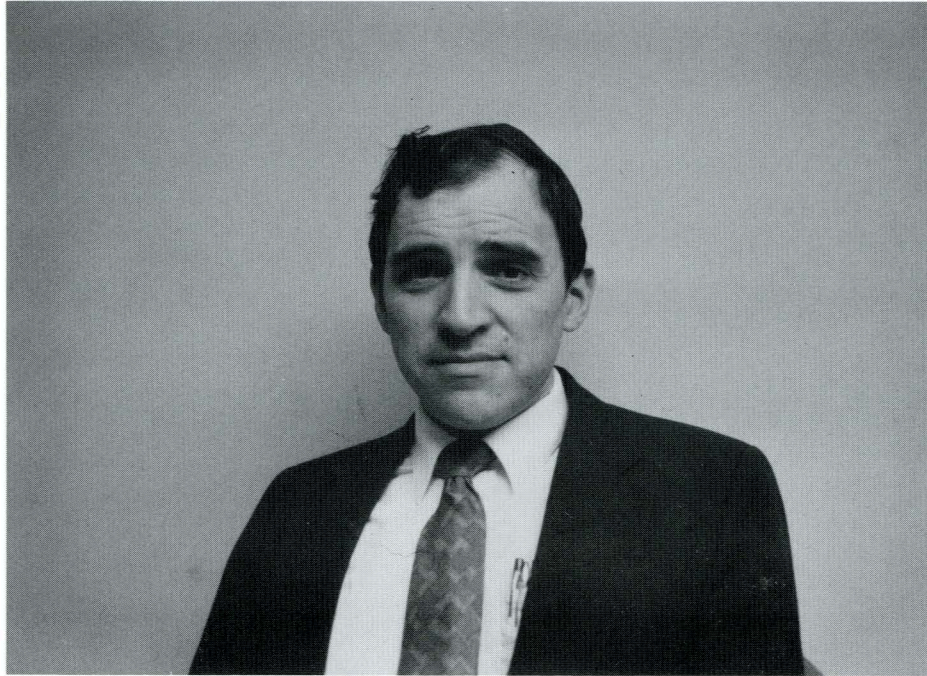

Elie Wiesel spoke with fervent forthrightness and calm courage to the President of the United States so that all the world could hear that the visit to Bitburg to lay a wreath on the gravestones of German soldiers as Nazi victims could not be compared to the unprovoked and vicious slaughter of innocent, talented, and loving men, women and children.

As recipient of the Nobel Prize, Elie Wiesel addressed the civilized world on the necessity of not absolving ourselves of guilt by mere recognition and awards, by monuments and memorial meetings.

In appearing before the leadership of the Soviet Union, Elie Wiesel urgently demanded freedom of emigration from Russia, thus supporting the Refuseniks and giving them genuine hope for freedom.

These are the directions that the mission has taken for Elie Wiesel. It is only a beginning of his world leadership. You must be there at his side to applaud and to exercise every effort to realize the mission.

Sincerely,
Solomon Simonson
Vice-President

To the graduates,

It gives me great pleasure to congratulate you upon your graduation from Touro College. This achievement, which marks the completion of a curriculum which involves years of study in a variety of diverse fields, is one of which you and your families can be justly proud. I am confident that your future endeavors will similarly be a source of pride to the Touro community and will speak well of your Touro education.

Touro believes that education must be a lifelong pursuit and should not stop with the award of a degree. The "chacham", the wise, can always find an opportunity to learn as it is written in Pirkei Aboth — Ethics of the Fathers — "Who is wise? — He who learns from all men". Naturally, we would like to encourage you to continue your intellectual growth through formal education, either in a program offered by Touro or elsewhere. However, if this proves impossible for practical reasons, it is essential that you continue to improve your skills and knowledge and that your life express a commitment to further education and growth.

As a Touro graduate, you are invited to become active in the Touro Alumni Association, so that you can help others to receive a fine education, and assist other Touro students with advice and counsel. With your help, the College will be able to provide even greater opportunities to the students of the future.

Once again, I wish you and yours all best wishes as you continue your educational and career goals.

Yours sincerely,
Stanley Boylan
Dean of Faculties

Dear Graduates,

Graduation from college is a milestone in your lives; you and your parents can be justifiably proud of this achievement.

As you, graduates of the class of 1987, leave Touro to pursue careers, you will find yourself exiting a relatively sheltered milieu and entering a world where personal gain and the profit motive are the ultimate arbiters of success. It is a world too often dominated by a Yuppie mentality which equates self-worth with the acquisition of foreign cars and the individual merit with the accoutrements of conspicuous consumption. You must learn to coexist in this environment without absorbing its spirit.

At Touro we have endeavored not only to prepare you for your chosen field but also to imbue you with perspectives and values rooted in a Torah heritage. This heritage clashes with the contemporary zeitgeist. You must remember that ethics and morality are not mere catchwords, mechanistically — invoked, easily discarded; rather, they are constraints and yardsticks for making decisions and choosing courses of action. As Jews, you must be concerned with the welfare of the community and society-at-large. You will soon discover that caring, compassion, and helping the less fortunate have their own special rewards. Good deeds and a good name are of greater worth than a growing investment portfolio.

As children of the post-Holocaust generation, you also have a special responsibility for assuring the perpetuation of the Jewish people. This requires a continued commitment on a personal level to Jewish Studies and a dedication to enhancing Jewish education for all.

Congratulations and good luck!

Robert Goldschmidt
Dean of Students

Dear Friends,

It is a particular pleasure to extend greetings to the 1987 graduating class of Touro College. Those of you who attended the Women's Division have shared in the adventures of three classroom facilities and three dormitory homes in the past four years. Fortunately, our travels (and travails) appear to have come to a pleasant, and hopefully permanent, juncture just in time for your graduation.

Your class has given deeply to Touro College. You accepted the challenge of Touro — a school too new to be deeply established and too established to be truly new. Your elan and verve have added to the cumulative Touro College experience as many of your members played exciting roles in the whole range of college activities.

For this — and more — you deserve our profound thanks. You have improved upon what came before you and set a pattern of excellence for those who will follow you. May you all be so fortunate as to be able to repeat this pattern of accomplishment in the varied post-college lives upon which you are now embarking.

Sincerely yours,
David Luchins, Ph.D.

Older than I used to be, younger than I'm gonna be, fewer things puzzle me now than when I was young, but when my pace is falling slack, I catch myself thinking back . . . and if I could go back and start over somehow, I would not change that much knowing what I know now . . . this is the time to remember 'cuz it will not last forever, these are the days to hold on to, 'cuz we won't altho' we'll want to . . . Have you ever thought what it would be like to be trapped in a submarine in an accident? Well in my three years at Touro I've realized what that kind of panic would be like—I'm going through that kind of panic right now, this minute...

In high school I recited this monologue three different times, for three different instructors, and received A's each separate time. (Can this numerical factor have symbolic significance Professor Popkin?)

I find myself mumbling it in its entirety from time to time; merely to remind myself that everything in life is a sort of play. We all go through the staging that society orchestrates for us. — And if we act well and portray our characters with realism, we can only expect praise and standing ovations.

Each midterm, each final, each paper, each argument, each friendship, each love, and each experience can only add to our overall performance as actors.

We go through stages and whirlwinds of emotion and thought and find ourselves back to where we started ... thirsting for more. Searching for the ultimate truth and excitement.

With fear and doubt I came to New York. I attended classes, read books, developed friendships, worked, played, sang, cried, and laughed and laughed until my sides ached. I grew up and experienced every kind of emotion possible.

I did it. I played the ultimate part!

And in order for all of this to happen and in praise of my growth I thank the following:

Roberta, my closest friend and sister for always saying what I needed to hear. For always respecting me no matter what. For always laughing and loving me blindly. I love ya.

Shari, an exact mirror of who I am beyond the image. For hugging me and laughing with me and encouraging me. For admiring me when I had no admiration for myself at all. Good night, sleep well. I love ya!

Miriam, my cousin, my friend for life. You always wait patiently for me to return. Always praise me and sing with me and make me realize that there is a little girl inside. "You'll never know just how much I love you".

Sim, never critical, always there, always remembering and searching for my motives — but laughing when finding them! We have a wonderful future ahead of us — and I am sure we'll spend it together. I can't imagine ever being separated. Can you? Umm — Bye.

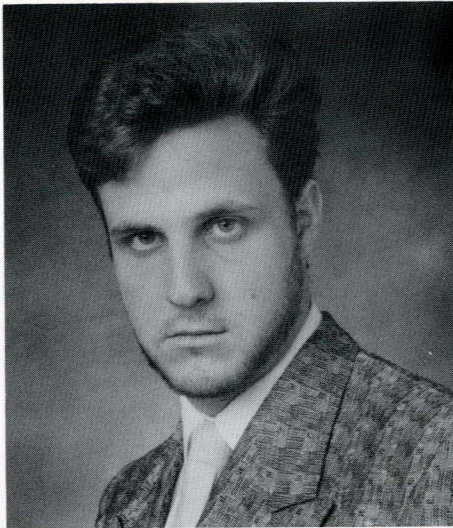

Mazu for your beautiful smile, which says it all!

Raquel for your selfless sympathy.

My male New York friends (you know who you are!) for being there and for teaching me the meaning of patience.

My professors for their understanding of my craziness.

And — my beautiful family for always giving me the option of coming home where it's warm and safe, and encouraging me always with love and laughter.

Some Touro Memiors:

Remember...

When we had Organie Lab on the roof... When we won the big debate on the Contras because of our professionalism (and great bodies!)... When I deserted Touro and took up residence at Kaplan's... When certain people found out that I was taking business courses... When I didn't play dress up... When we played ping pong Fridays after killing our frogs... When we took home our frogs and put them in the frig for mom... When I promised to go to lunch—and we did... Aegis staff meetings—I've got to leave early but please don't fire me again... Dr. Budick's classes and his real voice... When I got only 29 out of 30 quotes. That's it! Are you sure?... The Independent (and my article)... When Bais Medrash was L'shmaw... When we had 18 guys in Chemistry. That was the first day, of course... When we met with Middle States and told them the truth... The girl's school is 5 minutes walk by car. Now where is it again?... When Rebbe and I were both on time on the same day... The Student Lounge. Ah, the smell of it... When a course was given at two different times during the same semester... When I worked nine to five like normal people... When things were like they used to be. Plain and complicated...

Some Closing Thoughts...

During my college years at Touro, I have learned a lot. Both in and out of school. I continued with my Judaic studies which was one of the primary reasons I chose to attend Touro. There are a half-a-dozen teachers at Touro that are of the highest academic caliber and I spent several semesters with each. My background in both science and business should prove to be an interesting combination. My work at D.H. Blair & Co. has become an integral part of my life and I look forward to attending graduate school and building an exciting career on Wall Street.

While I have always stressed academic accomplishment, over the past several years I have learned important things about life. I really enjoyed the company of my friends at Touro. Some of them are extremely special people that contributed significantly to my growth. Perhaps the most important fact to realize in life is the value of people. Millions come and go (hopefully the former) but people and relationships with people are what really counts in life.

בס"ד

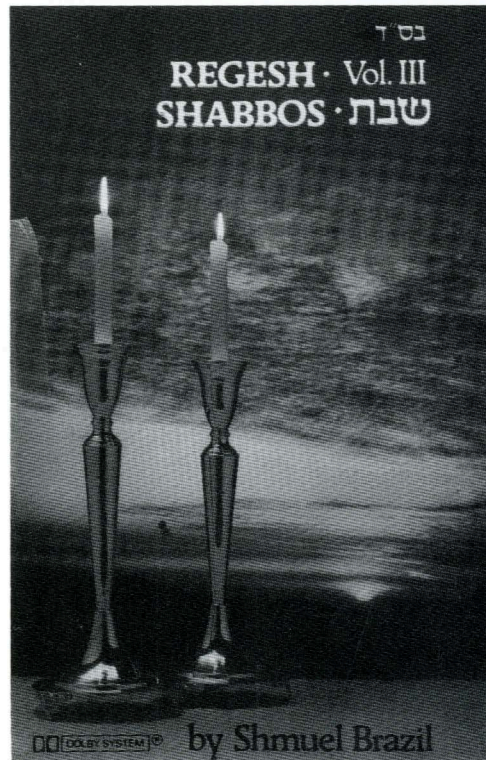

A story is told of the Kotzker Rebbe. When he was a young child, his teacher asked him to explain the whereabouts of Hashem. Whereupon, he simply, yet profoundly answered, "wherever you let Him in."

What might have been simple during the Kotzker's time is more difficult to achieve nowadays. We are presently being onrushed by the tidal waves of the bitter "golus" culture, undermining the once solid foundation of the pure quality of Torah life. The subtle currents of decaying western civilization have permeated and infiltrated our Jewish Homes in the many masks of mode of dress, thought, entertainment, and even the music that we allow ourselves and our children to listen to. To the caring Jew, it has truly become increasingly difficult to let Hashem in.

It has now been a year since our first REGESH album was introduced to the public. At the onset, we were advised that its success was questionable, for it contained the style of songs and music which was not at all popular and prevalent. Time has proven the skeptics wrong. Yidden who had never made contact with Hashem have found their hearts and "neshomos" deeply aroused, as these songs became their moments of union and meaning with their Creator. B'nei Torah, who are struggling to maintain and preserve pure what they already possess and cherish, have found renewed strength and hope by hearing and singing these nigunim over and over again. The overwhelming reaction seems to be a cry for something deeper, something more penetrating, that touches their souls.

With the Almighty's help, we bring you the second album of REGESH. May our nigunim inspire you to even loftier heights than the first. And if nothing else, may it give you the strength to help carry you during your trying struggles for Yiddishkeit, as our first song of the album sings out, "Kavei El Hashem." The prayer for strength to ever constantly Hope to Hashem—the words of Dovid Hamelech to Yisroel—"Yidden—Never Despair." If these nigunim can accomplish this, then once again ב"ע"ז we have succeeded.

To overcome fear of living is an accomplishment in itself
To teach this to others, a miracle
Growth is a never ending process, started at birth and forever starting
At each stage a new thing is learned—grown if you will
Recently I learned to love myself
    And trust in others

To my best friends: Andy, Leah, Sara — thank you for everything. I love you all dearly. You helped me out of the darkest part in my mind — me.
To my other friends: Ilana, Chana, Beverly, Anna, Ellen, Danny, Shiya, Tzvi, Mordi, Robert, etc. ... Thank you for all the light you showed me could be there, and closing my mind to the stupidity it was reaching for. You gave me perspective in a wider sense. And I love you all, too.

P.S. — While I am still an egg, I grok.

P.P.S. — I was the ongonal Venutian.

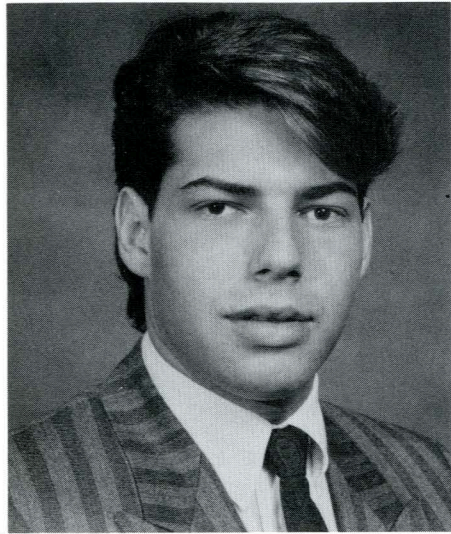

P.P.P.S. — To food & conversation at 2 AM, CHEERS!

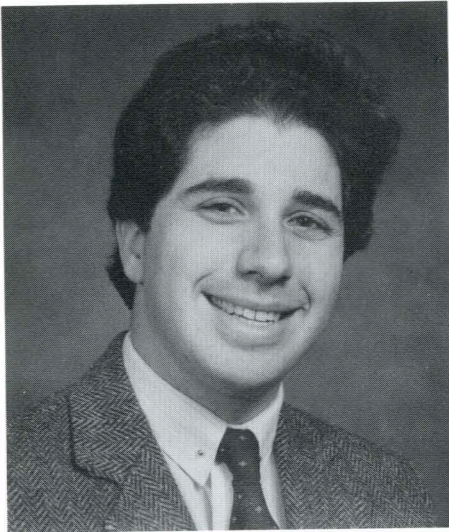

P.P.P.P.S. — Just good friends!

P.P.P.P.P.S. — To our strange, 3 way marriage.

President of Student Government

Our Dearest Evan,

Mother shall miss writing those daily pre-breakfast notes, that she placed at a slant, under a corner of your table setting mat. The notes left for you to unscramble throughout the “mornings of our lives.” For the most part, these little notes began and concluded in the same traditional, familiar way. By now, you know these “good mornings” by heart. Of course, often times, the mid-sections housed a sprinkle of “please remember,” “not to forget.” Of course!

So then, from the heart, by the hand, very much like her notes to you, Evan, which rarely summed up without a post script — and which post script, rarely, was really a post script, rather more like a novel —

G-d speed, good health and safety along the ways. We wish you fine and lasting friendships, the deserved, loving, strong future relationships. Also, continued academic knowledge and enthusiasm. And happiness and success in your thought-out decision, and choice of the career. Very importantly, that the accumulation of the combined years of knowledge, and growth will remain a strength throughout, and that you will therefore participate fully and strictly in “the ways” — for that is good — the focused, dedicated and disciplined life you know, is the superior life ...

Thank you for being the precious, sensible link in the chain. Thank you for all that you have always been, to each of us, at home. Please do not forget to remember — “this is a positive thinking area.” With. G-d’s help we do well ... so long as there exists too that individualistic, unique effort — eventually, things do turn out right and good. “If you should find a path with no obstacles, it probably doesn’t lead anywhere.” “If fifty million people, say a foolish thing, that would still be a foolish thing.” Who said that? Who always has something to say, everyday? Who is the quiet familial strength? Who is the life of the party?

Love, Devotion Eternal, and Family Blessings
Mom, Dad and Byron Howard

“...the souls of the righteous are in the hand of G-d, and there shall no torment touch them. In the sight of the unwise they seemed to die; and their departure is taken for misery, and their going from us to be utter destruction: but they are in peace. For though they be punished in the sight of men, yet is their hope full of immortality. And having been a little punished, they shall be greatly rewarded: for G-d tested them, and found them worthy for himself.”

LNT REALTY

Dear DEBBIE,

Here are some things to remember your senior year by:

No smoking, chocolate doughnuts, that first Shabbos, the walking tour, learning how to J-walk, Snoopy calenders, Ziggy, posters, roommates Desiree, Penina and Sara, rearranging the furniture, a freezing room 205, mice, brownies, chocolate, Star Trek IV, Rockefeller Center, snow, talking all hours of the night, our families using our own money, my sisters, your sister, your brother, Karate, Chicken Caciotore, Backgammon, Solitaire, Billy Joel, Barry Manilow, Air supply, Andy, Kashrut class, Psychology class, the promised tour of Central Park, going out for breakfast, pancakes, french toast, no water, birthday dinners, and last but not least, the telephone. Thanks for all the help you've given me. Good luck in the future, you've earned it.

Congratulations DEBBIE.

Luv Beverly

CONGRATULATIONS

Dear Debbie,

Dear Debbie,
Meet you in the kitchen at midnight.
You bring the tomato sauce, I'll bring the pepper steak.

Signed,
Your evil twin

P.S. How about brownies for dessert?

To A Fantastic Sister
