

2011

Mostly White Coat

Yaakov Liss

New York Medical College

Follow this and additional works at: https://touro scholar.touro.edu/quill_and_scope

Part of the Arts and Humanities Commons, Higher Education Commons, and the Medicine and Health Sciences Commons

Recommended Citation

Liss, Y. (2011). Mostly White Coat. Quill & Scope, 4 (1). Retrieved from

This Poetry and Creative Writing is brought to you for free and open access by the Students at Touro Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in Quill & Scope by an authorized editor of Touro Scholar. . For more information, please contact touro.scholar@touro.edu.

Mostly White Coat

Yaakov Liss

I might have been a segment of hospital wallpaper
A drab cream easily ignored
But for that coffee stain on the left sternal border
Of my short length medical skin
Announcing my sleeplessness and clumsiness

I've attempted cover-up with my stethoscope bell
But could not escape judging eyes during auscultation
Concealment with a Blackberry
But found myself frightened to Google...
Even obscuration with a fortress of pens
Positioned in a row
Ruined by my bowing
Sending me to the ground to gather the debris

I should really stop by the dry cleaner.

Where on my way, I happened upon a vagrant-- unkempt, malodorous
Who screamed, "I like your coat, doctor."

I should really stop by the dry cleaner,
But I probably never will.