TOURO COLLEGE

Office of the President

30 West 44th Street,
New York, New York 10036

Touro's first decade was marked by many achievements, by great dreams realized, and by hurdles successfully corssed.

During our second decade we shall continue to grow, as we consolidate our gains and deepen our roots.

With our commitments to the Holy Land, we seek to strengthen our ties to Israel while strengthening the College as well. Perhaps our greatest recent achievement in this regard is the establishment of the Touro-Technion joint B.S./M.D. Program. Touro students will now have the opportunity to complete their undergraduate and medical studies in as little as six years. And much of their medical training will take place in Israel.

We look forward to a new decade of achievement. But after the past decade of enormously hard work, we have learned more deeply than ever that our achievement rests nowhere else but in you.

May you be as successful as you dream.

Dr. Bernard Lander

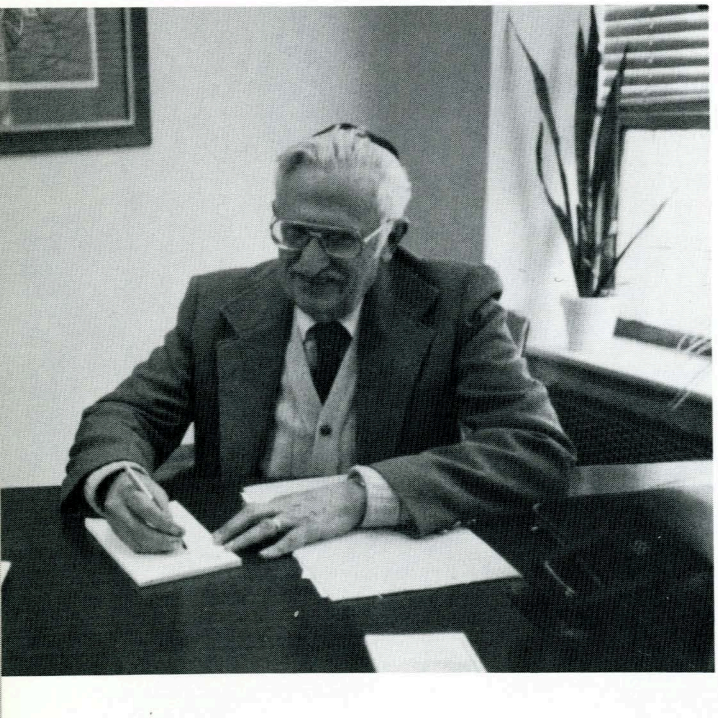
Dear Graduates:

As you leave this very intimate and informal college, you will remember it as a true home, where professors and administrators were virtual elder brothers and sisters of your family.

The curriculum which nourished your college life gave you scope in appreciating various human cultures that permeate the secular ideals and knowledges of Western civilization. But the most healthful vitamins came from your digesting the great values and stirring attitudes that were offered in the sacred works of our people. When you combine your understanding of the role of prophetic fervor in history with political sagacity in human relations, you will grow to become the leader in society that Touro College envisioned and planned for your life.

I cannot say good-bye to you as I am so eager to see you again and again. L'hitraot.

Shalom u'Brachah!



Yours devotedly,

Solomon Simonson
Provost

DEAN OF STUDENT'S ADDRESS

"The most searching question that can be asked about a university," the philosopher Paul Blanshard writes in his book, The Uses of a Liberal Education is "what sort of person does it produce?" What sort of person are you, the Touro graduate of 1982?

In the past decade, academicians and educators have engaged in a tangled and inconclusive debate about the ends and means of education. Proponents of career education have trumpeted the virtues of curricula shaped by the flow charts of the corporate world. Defenders of traditional liberal arts education have continued to sing the praises of the general education model, particularly its merits in teaching us to think.

The Touro paradigm incorprates both stands. One the other hand, our career-orientated majors enable students to gain specific training for the world of work. On the other hand, the humanities sequence is an exemplar of what a liberal arts education is at its best. The Touro graduate should be more than a technician or a competent professional. We believe, as James Russell Lowell said long ago, that the ideal of the college is "a man of culture, a man of intellectual resources, a man of public spirit, a man of refinement, with that good taste which is the conscience of the mind and that conscience which is the good taste of the soul." Yet, we have attempted to design a curriculum and an educational environment that does not merely synthesize, but creates a unique model on the landscape of American education.

While we have cultivated your critical faculties and honed your intellects, we have been even more concerned with the development of an ethical and moral foundation for action. Life entails action, not merely contemplation, and action demands that we make decisions and choose amongst competing goals and objectives. Decision-making is governed by priorities and priorities in turn, are derived from one's beliefs and hierarchy of values. Most decisions, even about technical issues, harbor moral dilemmas, require that we make choices between right and wrong, that we balance the public good and private satisfaction. We have trained you to search for and be sensitive to the ethical, moral and hence ultimately, the human angle of any decision. However, this ethical sensitivity alone will not do. We reject the value relativism that is the dominant ethos in so many academic institutions. The Jewish Studies component of the curriculum has exposed you to a hierarchy of values which will infuse your behavior and provide a compass to guide your decisions. Your scale of values is rooted in the eternal verities of the Jewish tradition and heritage. These values establish criteria for making judicious and wise decisions.

Men are men before they are lawyers, or physicians or manufacturers," wrote John Stuart Mill. Regardless of your professional endeavors and future pathways in life, you, the men and women of the class of 1982 leave Touro as individuals with a clear sense of direction, as citizens in quest of the public good, as people trained to think, to feel for others, and to make decisions that are rationally sound and always ethically and morally correct.

We are proud of you. Good luck!

Robert Goldschmidt
Dean of Students

January 29, 1982

Dear Graduates,

It gives me great pleasure to congratulate you upon the occasion of your graduation from Touro College and to wish you great success in your future endeavours. The Touro administration, faculty, and your fellow students, take pride in your achievements to date and expect your future accomplishments to reflect even more greatly on the quality of Touro's educational process.

The theme of your yearbook - "Touro College - A Blending of Jewish Studies with the Liberal Arts and Sciences" aptly addresses the double thrust of our curriculum. Indeed, Touro prides itself on its unique mission, stressing the relevance of the Jewish heritage to the general culture of Western Civilization. Just as we measure our success as a college in terms of your educational and career achievements later in life, so too we can evaluate our accomplishments in terms of your understanding and commitment to the values inherent in the Jewish Tradtion. In this regard, your years at touro have prepared you to assume leadership roles in the intellectual and spiritual life of our people.

If I, or Touro, can be of any service to you do not hesitate to call. Once again, my congratulations to you, your families and all who share in your achievements.

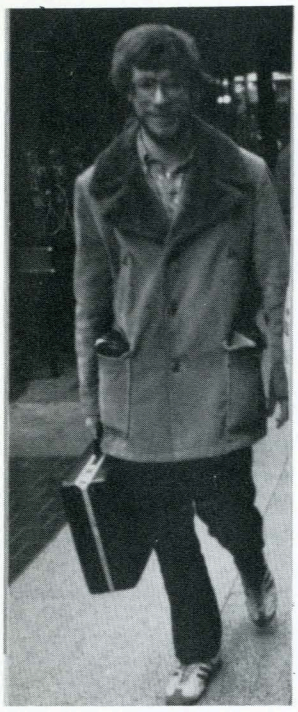
MESSAGE TO THE GRADUATES CLASS OF 1982

It is a special privilege to write these words of fond farewell to our 1982 graduates - a class that has helped maintain the Touro heritage under sometimes difficult circumstances. It is exciting to be a pioneer - it is far more challenging to be among the first to follow the pioneers. This was your class' unique destiny - to attend a school too new to be deeply established but too established to be truly new. You accepted this challenge with elan and accounted for yourselves with verve and polish - cherishing the traditions that preceded your coming to the school, and creating new and meaningful patterns of behavior that those who follow you to Touro College would do well to emulate.

For this you deserve our profound thanks - that you improved upon what came before you and set a pattern of excellence for those who will follow you. May you be so fortunate as to do so in every aspect of the varied post- college lives upon which you are now embarking.

Dr. David Luchins
Assistant Dean of Students
for the Women's Division



STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The backbone of any student body is its senior class with its knowledge of the system, maturity (or lack of it), and its general experience. As Presidents of the Student Government, while we are happy for and wish to congratulate the individual graduates, we are sorry to see them leave. Over the course of this past year many members of the Senior Class gave of their time and of themselves to make this year's student government one of the most successful in the history of Touro College. We wish you well with your future endeavors and hope that you always have a large amount of Hakaros Hatov for Touro.

Dear HEIDI,

I guess you could say that our friendship is like a "rollercoaster." Though we have had our share of ups and downs, we have always returned to our starting point; a dear and everlasting friendship.

With all our love and best wishes,
Eddie and Ivy

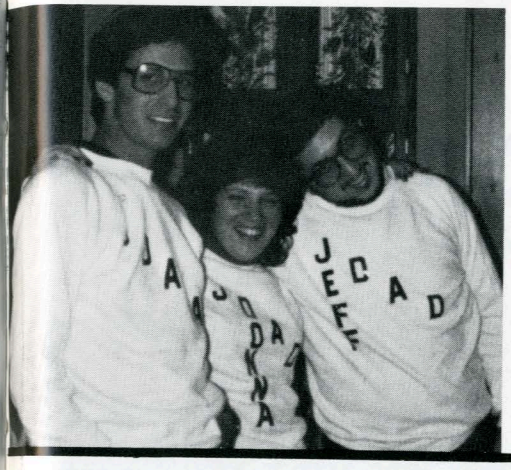
Dear HEIDI,
The best we can do for our friends is to be mirrors affirming the virtues our friends may have forgotten in themselves.
With all our love on your graduation
David & Jeff



Dear DONNA, ESTHER, SHELLY, & SHERI,
If I studied all my life, I couldn't think up half the number of funny things that have passed through the walls of 708. But, remember, everything is funny as long as it is happening to someone else!

With all my love and everlasting affection,
HEIDI

To ESTHER, HEIDI (PUMPKIN), & SHERI,
"A slight touch of friendly malice and amusement towards those we love keeps our affections for them from turning flat."
For all the times that one of us have been subject to each other's ridicule or insults, we should know it's only done in jest.
All My Love To You Guys.
Congratulations,
DONNA

To the Sabras of 704 (MIRYAM, DANA, LEAH)
I knew you were graduating and I couldn't let your last year of college come to a close without expressing my last words. I know we will always be in touch but I wanted to wish you Hatzlacha and Mazel Tov in the days ahead. Remember its not where you are but the direction in which you are going that counts.
P.S. Don't be strangers.

PAULA,
Muchas felicidades en tu graduacion.
Buena suerte en tu futuro.
Cariños siempre, tu hermano,
Jonathan

Dear DONNA (My Turn),
"Friendship is one mind in two bodies."
In our case it seems to be one face- All My Love upon your graduation,
Debbie

Dear Stork,
As eternal as the humor of our late-night-stay-ups, Moe, Larry, Curly, Hazel, and Groucho so may our friendship be.
Love, Kisses, and Hugs,
