Academic Associate: Norman Rosenbaum
Barrister at Law

To the Graduating Class of 1993, Touro College

The name "Yankel Rosenbaum" is today a symbol of the times in which we live; times which regretfully are characterized by an ever growing tide of Anti-Semitism, both here in the United States and abroad.

Yankel was 29 years of age when he met his untimely death on the streets of New York at the hands of rioting bands amidst the cries of "Kill the Jew! Kill the Jew!" in the early hours of the Crown Heights Pogrom in August 1991.

A research academic at the University of Melbourne in Australia, Yankel held a number of visiting professorial positions around the world, and was in New York on a three year Australian Government scholarship to continue his research. He could speak five languages, was articulate and extremely well read, equally at ease discussing in depth literature, the arts, classical music or rock and roll. He was fit, energetic, agile and enjoyed sport. He founded and ran his own business.

Above all else, Yankel was a devout, uncompromising Orthodox Jew who kept meticulously to Torah traditions and values. To all those who knew him, whether academically, socially or in business, Yankel stood out as a person with a sharp mind and a very droll, dry wit, universally admired as a person of principle, always prepared to give of himself to whomever, whenever and wherever he could.

Indeed, it was Yankel's ability to treat all people with equality and equity, respect and compassion — to care, irrespective of their background, education, race, creed or color, that made him stand out as a fine human being, whose humility and modesty were the hallmarks of his character. Yankel could neither tolerate nor condone snobbery or arrogance. Elitism and racism were repugnant to him, irrespective of the context in which they arose. Not only good to his family and always there for his friends, it was his openness and realistic approach to life which left an indelible impression upon all who met him.

Yankel had the skill to not only differentiate between right and wrong, good and bad, but to strive for that in which he believed.

Yankel was not without fault and it was he who would be the first to admit to a never-ending desire to improve himself; to make the person of today better than the person of yesterday, to make this world a better place.

"Don't just talk, do it" was Yankel's philosophy and he lived by his word. "Aim for the top, not mediocrity." He did a lot and achieved much.

Only three days before he was murdered, a friend who very much appreciated his depth of knowledge and eloquent communication skills, remarked sincerely, "Yankel, one day you're going to be famous!" to which Yankel responded in a serious tone "My interest is not fame. If, through my work I will awaken one Jew to the dangers of Anti-Semitism, then I have succeeded. I see many parallels between the slow rise of Anti-Semitism in Poland, and what is happening today in America."

To each and every graduate, as you are confronted with the various challenges which life presents, remember Yankel Rosenbaum — his nature, his character, his courage, his values and principles, his integrity and determination, his strength of body and of soul. Stand up and be counted. Determine what's right and pursue it with vigor.

May the most that you want, be the least that you get.

Best Wishes,

Norman Rosenbaum.

Dear Graduates:

It is my distinct pleasure to congratulate every one of our Touro College graduates, Class of 1993. We have provided you with an excellent academic curriculum in an ambiance consistent with the mission of our institution.

Your education at Touro College has been built on a bedrock foundation which embodies a combination of the study of our spiritual and cultural heritage plus a pragmatic preparation for the world of work. Our Talmudic sages realized that very few of us can achieve a total existence exclusively devoted to the study of our heritage. For many of us the combination of the religious teachings and secular education has better prepared us for life. Our excellent faculty has striven to provide you with superior programs in Jewish studies and career curricula.

אבות ב:ב " יפה תלמוד תורה עם דרך ארץ שיגיעת שניהם משכחת עון,
וכל תורה שאין עמה מלאכה, סופה בטלה וגוררת עון "

"Torah study is good together with an occupation, for the exertion of both makes sin forgotten."

We call graduation exercises a commencement, a beginning. Sir Winston Churchill said it most eloquently, "This is not the end, this not even a beginning of the end. This is just the end of the beginning." As you face that new beginning, the charge to you is to continue on the road that Touro has set for you. May your future lives reflect glory, upon yourself, Touro, and the Jewish community.

Shalom.

May 1993

Dear Graduate,

It is my pleasure to congratulate you on the occasion of your graduation from Touro College. This distinctive achievement marks the culmination of years of study of a curriculum which has exposed you to the lasting values of the Jewish people as well as the foundations of career or professional studies. Your parents and loved ones should rightly share in this moment of accomplishment.

The year of your graduation, 1993, was also a momentous year in Touro College's history and development. Two new main campuses, for the Men's Division and Women's Division were opened. Final approval was granted for the construction of a new campus facility for the Flatbush program. New laboratory and computer installations were completed. The undergraduate student body demonstrated continued growth throughout the College.

Central to the enhancement of the Touro program is the individual student and his or her educational experience. This emphasis on individual growth in a small college atmosphere should lead to a continued involvement with the College even after graduation. As a young school, Touro's reputation as an academic institution depends greatly on your own success and your continued involvement with the College. We look to you as active alumni members who will provide leadership to a future generation of Touro students.

If I or my office can be helpful to you in your future endeavors, do not hesitate to call upon us.

Once again, my congratulations to you and your parents upon your wonderful achievements.

Sincerely yours,

Stanley Boylan

Dear Graduates,

It is my great pleasure to congratulate you, the 1993 Touro graduates, on the completion of your Baccalaureate degrees.

The 1993 Class of the Women's Division has the distinction of being the first to graduate from our new building. We are very happy that you were able to share this lovely facility with us and we hope to greet you many times in the future as returning alumnae.

The Touro education that you have received has equipped you for a life of personal growth and development. The woman has always been the spiritual barometer of the Jewish people. The future of our nation is entrusted to us. Now, more than at any other time in Jewish history we must develop ourselves in order to continue to serve our Torah tradition.

At the heart of any learning experience lies the process of learning about oneself. We hope that your years at Touro have been useful to you in this regard. We hope that you have been challenged during your education at our institution to conceive of your life as a vertical adventure in which you demand of yourself to be all that you can be. We also hope that you have learned to discern and value excellence and righteousness. It is our dream that as you leave our institution you do so with a desire to serve mankind in general and the Jewish people in particular and to do so with distinction and pride.

May the rest of your life be a great journey in which you continue to learn about yourself, your heritage and your potential and may you always be a source of inspiration and pride to your Touro family.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Graduates,

I would like to congratulate you upon reaching this momentous milestone in your life. As a member of the Touro College Graduating Class of 1993, you can look back with satisfaction as you measure the intellectual distance you have travelled over the past few years.

As you exit from the Commencement Exercises you are leaving the College milieu, an insulated environment bounded by time periods, tests and the joys of intersession. You have encountered the challenge of ideas; now you face the challenges of life. You will be compelled to confront choices and make decisions which carry economic and moral price tags. You will experience situations and circumstances where the right course of action may not be discerned easily.

I am confident that your Touro education has prepared you to tackle the important decisions and issues ahead. Your professors have instilled in you a respect for the dignity of every individual. The Judaic Studies curriculum has forged your character as a Torah Jew and has imbued you with a set of priorities and values which will govern your future decisions. Career success, professional advancement and economic aspirations should never be allowed to compromise the actions and erode the ethos which define one's identity as a Jew.

I encourage you to maintain your links with Touro College by joining the newly-formed Alumni Association. Through this organization, you will be able to influence the future growth of your alma mater and stay in touch with fellow classmates and professors. We are always here to help you. In this spirit, I wish you good luck but do not say good-bye.

Best wishes,

Robert Goldschmidt

Dear Graduates:

I am delighted to extend greeting to the Touro College graduating class of 1993. Your members have added a rare measure of brio and verve to the Touro College family and hopefully acquired a first rate liberal arts education in the process.

All of us at the Women's Division have shared a range of interesting experiences during the past four years. Some of you attended classes in three different schools before we made the long anticipated move to our magnificent new home (which a few of you had begun to fear was little more than a figment of my fevered imagination). Not only did we get a new building but we also welcomed Dean Sarah E. Freifeld, a distinguished educator and communal leader whose appointment augurs well for our division.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Elaine Kraizer Epstein who so ably administered the Women's Division during these past few years and to thank Miriam Esther who filled in so well during Elaine's recent maternity leave. Kudos are also in order to Naomi Klapper for her superb assistance in guidance and to Susan Stern and Michelle Feinberg who have acted in loco parentis (and sometime, just plumb loco) at our Dormitory Facility.

With best wishes for your every continued success in matters temporal and sacred.

Sincerely,

David Luchins Ph.D.

My mom used to say that you should look at life in a positive way, because even when it seems like all the doors are locked, somewhere God leaves an open window.

I would like to thank all those who contributed to my education. A special thanks to Dean Goldschmidt for his support. Thanks to my wonderful husband and my parents who believed in me and gave me the strength to go on. I am going back to Israel, but I will never never forget the last three years in Touro College and my friends here. Thank You!!!

Contrary to popular belief, the yearbook does not create itself. Therefore I would like to thank the following people who helped to make Masoret 1993 possible: Dr. Michael Popkin, our faculty advisor, who takes no responsibility for anything published in this book, Professor Noami Klapper, our personal Human Relations Counselor, Ora Ben-Aviv, who volunteered her time, typing and other tireless efforts, Eddy Diaz, for his help in every aspect of this yearbook from the editorial to letting me back into the yearbook room every time I locked myself out, David Karfunkel, who is responsible for the dedication of Masoret '93, Mike Wolff, Bari Tuckman, Andrea Fiderer, and Bonnie Bernstein for their help with the photography, Admit Chen and Batsheva Rothberg for their help with the layout, Missy Greenspon for her help with typing and humor together with Cheryl Goldberg (who gets a Mazal Tov on her engagement), Eric Greenblatt, who stayed in school with me until 10:30 at night in order to type the Hebrew, B.J., David, Isaac (Jesse), and Ranan, for their help with the Hebrew typing, graphics, and school logo, Rebecca Wagshall, Tamara Spitz, Yigal Pomerantz (whose name is spelled with an Aleph, not an Ayin — See pg. 46) Sabrina Gilbert, and Gideon A. Laniado (who comes to us all the way from Brooklyn College), for their literary contributions, Mr. Edward Schabes and his office, for their help with the mailings, Dean Abner H. Groff, for his advice and his work as a liason between the two buildings (and just because I love him), my Mom, Danielle, Michelle, Daniel, Michael, and Dave who shared their advice and kindly feigned an interest in every aspect of the creation of Masoret '93, Ted Schiffman, our Taylor Publishing representative, and finally, those people who actually brought in Ads and helped to finance this yearbook.

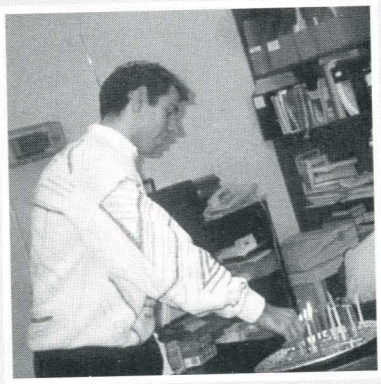
The Fall semester was filled with exciting Student Government activities which ranged from plays to school parties. Whatever the event, there was usually food around.

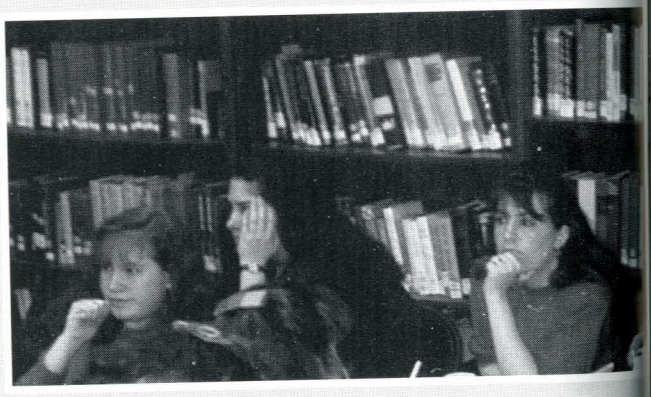
It began with Freshman dinner, when Mr. Broadway was invaded by the Touro entourage. Students had a chance to mix not only with students, but also with other folks having dinner at the esteemed establishment. The other customers seemed to be quite impressed with Mr. Broadway's ability to hold so many people in so litte space. Rabbi Stimler joined the party by sharing his words of widsom with the entire restaurant. All in all, the Freshman class got a little taste of what lay ahead.

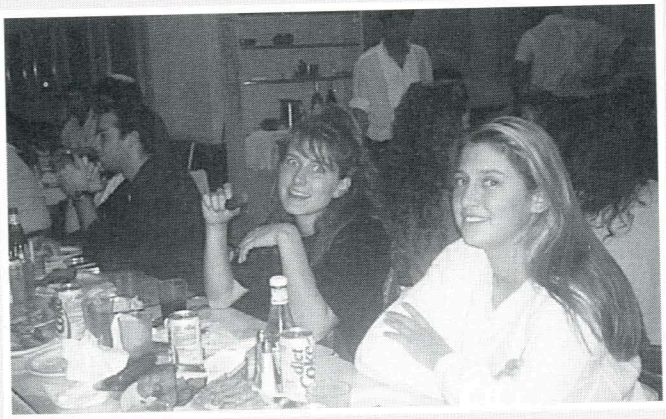
Touro students soon ventured out into the culture of New York. We took a stand at Stand Up New York, when one of our guys was mistaken for Luke Perry by Rabbi Joseph Telushkin. We stumped the audience with our vast knowledge of Jewish Who's Who, and walked away with several copies of the Rabbi's book. The cultural experiences continued with valuable lessons from "Five Guys Named Moe," who cautioned us to stay Safe, Sane, and Single. For the fun of it, they also taught us how to Congo and sing songs in foreign tongues. On the wilder side of New York, we watched the Rangers beat Calgary.

As the holiday spirit swept throughout the city, a little managed to find its way into the Chanukah Chagiga. With a lot of balloons, streamers, and music, the Women's Division library was transformed into a party hall. (Don't worry, no tape on the walls.) As folks happily ate their donuts and latkas, they willingly joined the dreidel tournament. Jake was victorious after the sweaty battle between him and the female participants. Bari came in a close second, winning three free raffle tickets. Elana and Jake stopped at no ends to outdo each other in order to sell the most tickets in the battle of the sexes. The studs of the evening left everyone in a good mood. Bari and Andrea, were subjected to some interesting "dates" but the "happy couple" of the night were Joel and Match.

By Sabrina Gilber

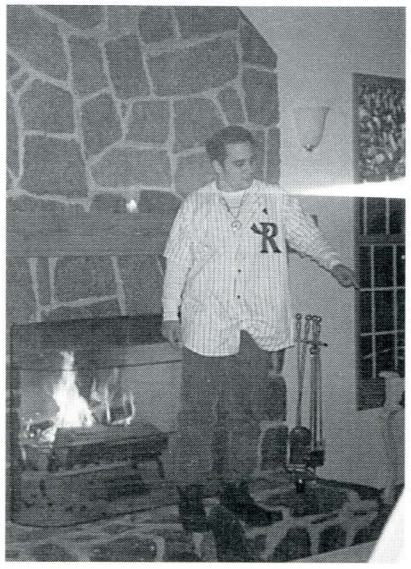






n Thursday, January 7, a big bus pulled up in front of the Touro dormitories to take us away to a Shabbaton at beautiful Lake George. Our ride was entertaining, to say the least, with a bootleg copy of Aladdin. Will we ever find out what happened to Bruce at the end of Die Hard?

We finally arrived at our luxurious accommodations at the Four Quarters Seasons Inn. Each unit had a fully stocked kitchen with food prepared by our T.C.S.G. representatives, two bedrooms, an open balcony overlooking the living room, a fireplace, and a view of the lake. The guys set in immediately trying to start the fires. Thank goodness for Shlomo, the boy scout. Others of us waited to watch the sunrise over the lake, but unfortunately, it came up behind the clouds.



Our activities were carefully planned by the Student Government, starting with sleeping late on Friday to make up for Thursday night. Later, whoever wanted, could go shopping at the Queensboro outlets. The Eisenbergs kept filling their car with the deals they found. Several of the more adventurous sportsmen ventured out onto a frozen lake to partake in some slipping and sliding.

After davening on Friday night in one unit, we had a delicious Shabbat meal in another. We sang Zmirot and Rabbi Feldman of the West Side Institute gave an inspiring d'var Torah about Parshat Vayechi. There was a little snow and a lot of laughter at the Oneg while "teams" were formed for games.

After davening on Shabbat morning, we sat down to our second meal, which included a hot and very tasty chulent, and plenty of ice in the sodas (in the bottles, that is!). Mincha followed the meal directly so that no one would nap through it later!

On Saturday night we went roller-skating. Almost everyone got skates at least once, and we were lucky to have only a few casualties. Congratulations to Sabrina on being nominated for best skater! Some of us were daring enough (or childish enough) to play "Simon Says" on roller skates. While a few were teaching others the fine art of skating, the truly talented were demonstrating the fine art of falling on the most padded body parts. Julie showed everyone a neat and stylish way to decorate skirts and Shlomo, Reuven and Jason showed us the newest dance steps on skates.

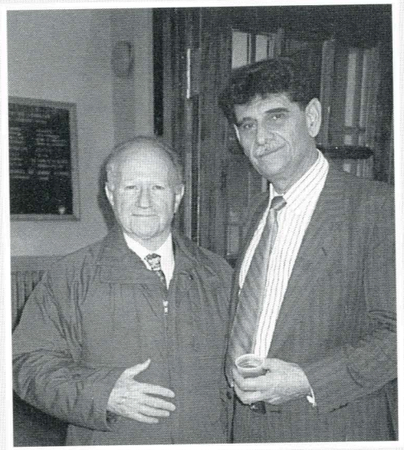
Later that night (or was it early Sunday morning?) we had a "kumzitz" and ate pizza in front of a roaring fire. Joel and Sabrina tried to entertain us with some kind of ghost stories, but fell short of scaring Elana out of her chair. Then the big moment came. The lucky winner of the raffle was to be announced. Congratulations to Bari Tuchman! As the morning hours ticked on, Jeremy began to run the shuttle service to our warm accommodations. After everyone was back at the Inn, we again attempted to watch the sunrise and this time it worked! A beautiful red sun rose above the lake.

Sunday morning, actually Sunday afternoon, everyone awoke and started to pack to go home. The maids were assured that everything would be put back in order and after much work by the Touro Cleaning Squad, the place was left in better shape than when we got there. Sadly, although the snow didn't fall in Lake George, when the bus returned to New York, snow was waiting for us.

— Sabrina Gilbert

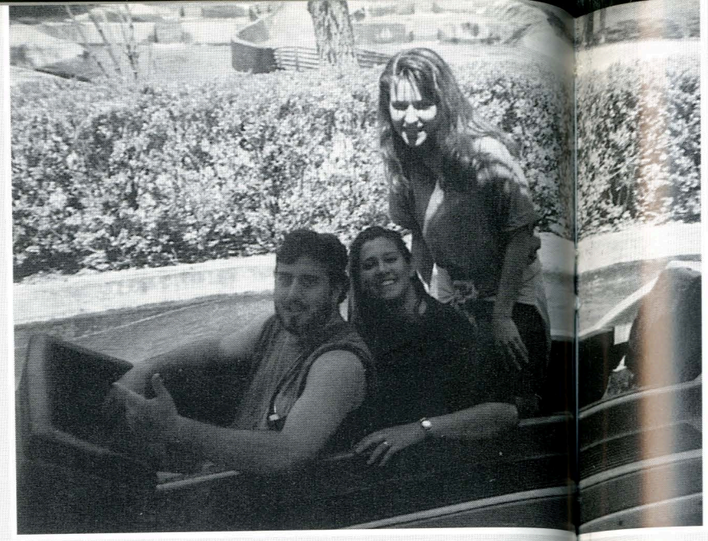
On the Serious Side . . .

In addition to the Mishmar program in the men's division, which presents a different speaker each week, the new women's division building was honored to host many guest lecturers. Among them were: Rabbi Josh Freilich, Rabbi Tzvi Flaum, Rebbetzin Tehilla Jaeger, Rabbi Moshe Weinberger, Rabbi Zev Leff, Dr. Rachel Yehuda, and Dr. Lotte Pick. On one special occasion, followed by a reception, Israeli Colonel Yehuda Levy, President and Publisher of the Jerusalem Post, spoke about the peace process.



Major General (Res.) Uzi Narkiss, Colonel Yehuda Levy.

Rabbi Dr. Bernard Lander, Rabbi Marcus, Mr. Sam Domb, Major General (Res.) Uzi Narkiss.



The Spring Semester entered quietly but left with quite a bang. Ice skating was cancelled due to mother nature's insistence on snowing. However, that did not hamper our excitement for the upcoming events. Purim came and went but not without a murder and a shortage of food. Don't worry, the murderer confessed to her crimes and was punished for the rest of the semester. After the late blizzard of '93, a group of adventurous skiiers set out to conquer the hills of Vernon Valley. Andrea and Jody passed ski school with flying colors, but the real test was up on the mountain. Andrea managed to develop a new method of teaching — GO until you hit something or somebody! Others of us arrived at the bottom missing skis and covered in snow. We came, we conquered, we left black and blue. Next, the circus came to town and Touro clowns met Ringley clowns. As we were awed by flying children and motorcycles in cages, Sabrina made friends with the monkey man, Seth commented on the ladie's costumes, and Missy made a lot of noise. Afterwards our daring group headed for the center ring, only to meet up with the head ring master and some clowns. Joel and the clowns hit it off immediately. After we got the security guards attention, the Touro circus left town. Our next adventure was the grand and mighty Great Adventure which managed to drench us, scare us, leave us penniless, voiceless, and burnt. Nevertheless, we emerged victorious with colorful pictures from our indestructable cameras, a fabulous time, and a whole lot of pelicans.

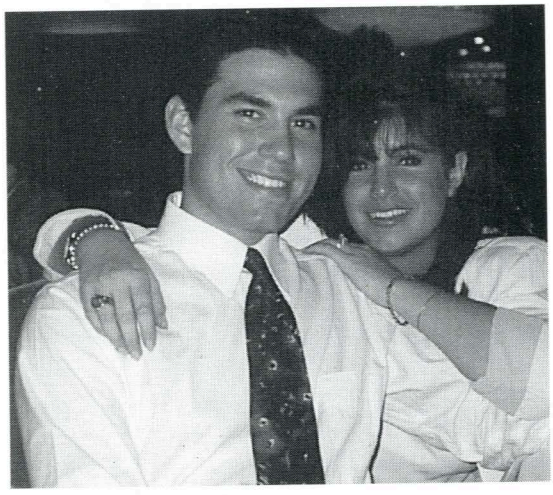
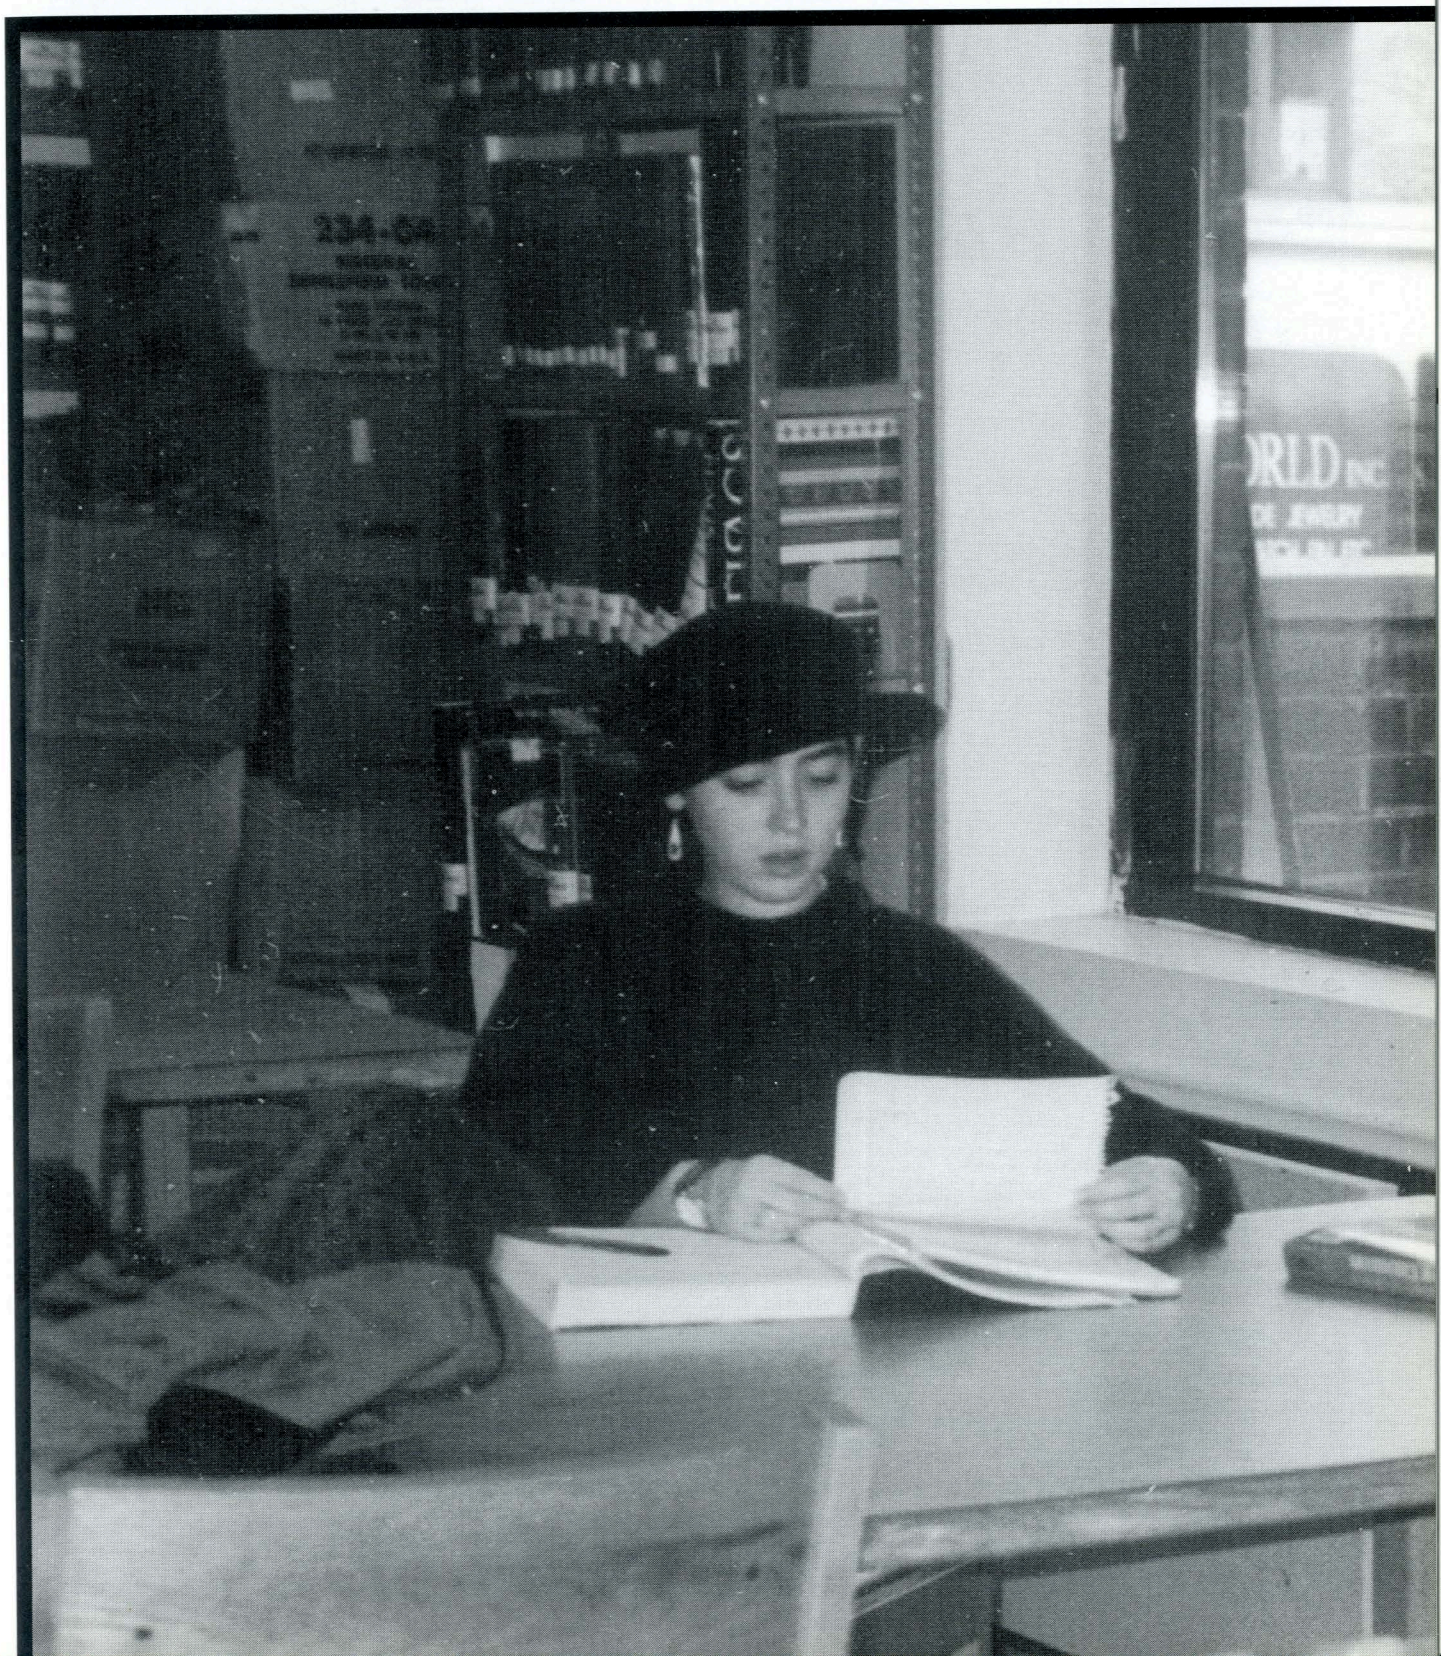
SENIOR DINNER



Literature



The Rebecca Wagshall Literary Section

Lines Composed a Few Miles Above Touro College

As we gaze back at the pictures of our lives, various musty water colored images surface in the mind's eye. The visions of ourselves as frolicking children radiating with the splendor of transient youth, pass by like the fleeting images on a countryside viewed from a speeding vehicle. (Sometimes, when we encounter an overzealous highway patrolman, named Ponch or John, we are fortunate enough to be able to gaze at those fleeting images for a more extended period of time.)

Despite the ephemeral nature of our existence, most of us manage to hold on to a few precious memories which sustain us as we travel onwards through our journey of life. As I pass through the hallowed halls of Touro College (whichever halls of whichever building you choose), where we have all amassed such a great deal of knowledge, I am certain that there are many events and images which shall always remain distinct in our memories.

Perhaps, it will be those jovial times at Registration where one was always sure to have the good fortune of having at least 10 non-present faculty members sign his/her forms. Or perhaps, in the Women's Division your pleasant memories consist of being stuck in the elevator. (Luckily, the ever resourceful Touro administration had the foresight to install an escape chute through which students might climb out the roof of the elevator and scale their way to safety.) Or, maybe your fond memories involve not actually coming to Touro but yet miraculously completing 120 credits via the Israel Option, the New York Institute of Technology, the Seminaries, and the ever popular Independent Study! Whatever you associate with your college experience at Touro, you can be sure that you will never forget the time you spent here, (even if you just passed through on roller blades or by bike).

When you return to Touro after years gone by, as Wordsworth did in his immortal return trip to Tintern Abbey (paging Professor Budick, come in Professor Budick), you will look upon the Touro building, (if Touro has not relocated to yet another building even farther from Penn Station and the B, D, Q, and F trains much to the joy and delight of the commuting women's division students (many of whom happen to be pregnant) who skip along the short ¾ of a mile stroll to that bastion of higher education), and view the past through older, wiser eyes, And as Wordsworth himself has said:

And this great institution, will become to you
More dear, both for itself and for thy sake!

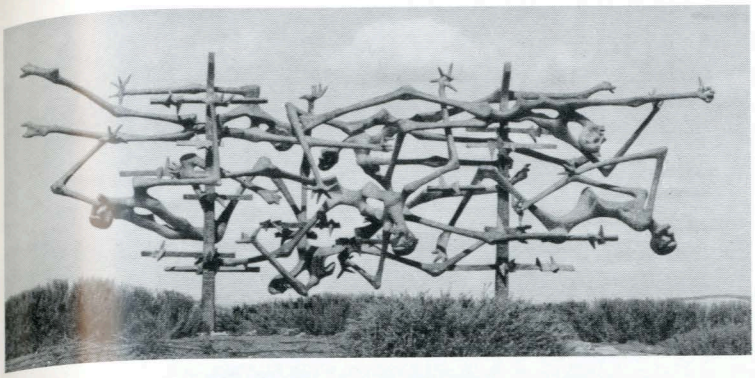
— R. W.

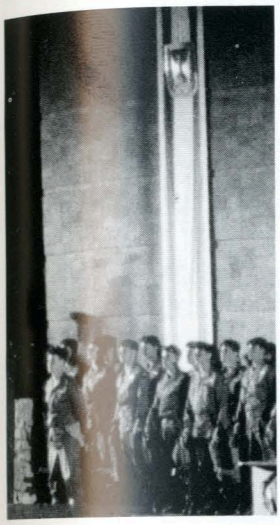
There was a Touro student from Secaucus
Who was good humored, fun, and racous.
He graduated in May
With a degree in business ways
And was working for the Touro Registrar by August.

There was a psych major from Brooklyn
Who spent her class time in the hall shmoozin'
When it was realized that she
Was unmarried at twen-ty
She was enrolled to learn hairstylin' and cookin'.

What is Haiku?
I don't know.
Do you?

— Rebecca





I look out the window of the bus and
Something catches my eye.
It sends a chill down my spine.
What just caused me to shudder so?
Could it have been the forest?
I've seen many forests.
What was so special about this one?
Trees are trees.
What moved over there?
Was that a person?
Running, trying to escape the
Brutal hand of his Nazi oppressor?
No, it couldn't have been.
But it looked so real.
What else could it have been?
It was probably just the wind.

— Tamara Spitz
(from the annual JOLT publication.)

The noise started suddenly — although it had been expected. The cars pulled to the side, their drivers getting out, and pedestrians stopped in their places. People looked from one to another as if to create a certain feeling of togetherness, then stared at the floor or blankly ahead to allow each his own individual thoughts, and then again to each other to find a second of comfort in the fact that each was, in his own way, experiencing the same thing. In the background the siren screamed and wailed and practically cried in commemoration of the Holocaust that was, not so long ago.

I rarely find myself crying at even the saddest or most sentimental of events and yet, as the siren continued to sound, it seemed to yank out any emotions that might have been locked inside. I stood at the corner of Machane Yehuda, my eyes beginning to tear, and I felt a lump form in my throat. Being that neither side of my family was directly effected, it has always been particularly hard for me, on an emotional level, to identify with the victims of the Holocaust. I always knew that I felt sad and carried a sense of loss and was angry about what had occured but I don't always feel it. Standing there, among a mass of people standing still, and watching the flags of the State of Israel and the city of Jerusalem flying above, I felt a mixed sense of sorrow at what had been, pride for what is now, and security in the future.

Just a short time before, that same siren had sounded. That time it did not cry with pain but it alerted and was protective. That time, the cars pulled over but the drivers remained inside seeking refuge from the unknown missiles. The pedestrians, instead of standing still, ran to their sealed rooms. There was a feeling of fear, but even more so, there was a feeling of pride. Our army "Haga," was taking care of us. Our broadcasters were reassuring us and calming us down. Our doctors were ready in the hospitals to treat us. No — we weren't fighting the battles, but we were taking care of ourselves. Yes — there was a fear of the unknown but there was the reassurance of the known. There is a State of Israel and that state was protecting each and every one of us in our own home.

During the Holocaust Memorial Day siren, I was finally able to understand how it must have been running without anyone to turn to because I had finally felt how it was to rely on a country whose only concern was my protection. No New York, though it may have more kosher restaurants than Tel Aviv or more synagogues than Eilat, can be the same. This is home.

על גבעות הגולן הניפלאות ניצב לו הר חרמון,
עומד הוא עמידה איתנה וחזקה מורדותיו
הגדולים חולשים אל ארץ הגליל.
והם פרוסים לרגליו כשטיח ענק צבעוני,
אין זאת כי אם מעשה ידי אומן...

III
ובמרכז, הרי יהודה ניצבים,
עומדים הם שקטים ושלווים, אך על תדמה
בנפשך ידידי כי תמיד כך היו פני הדברים.
כי הנה כאן בדרך העולה ירושלימה,
את הלמות יהודה המכבי שומע אני.
מצווה הוא את חייליו להלום בתווך
שם צבא היוונים קרב אדירים,
מלחמת גיבורים, עד כי בגיא נכנעים

IV
ובמרכזו של העולם ניצבת לה אבן השתיה.
שוממה היא ועצובה כי את הקדוש מכול
לקחו ממנה, ועתה זכים יושבים בקירבה.
אך אם תשכיל להאזין את
קריאת המלאך שמוע תשמע,
מהדהדת היא בכותלי הבית, ולנו מבטיחה היא,
כי אלהים את אומתנו יקיים הוא.
אף על תדמה בנפשך כי הבית שומם וריק הוא
כי הקדושה הגדולה ההיא עוד רוחשת בקירבה!
קוראת היא את בקשותינו,
מאזינה היא לתפילותנו,
וכבר שומעת היא את הלמות פעמי משיח צידקנו.

In order to maintain the Jewish Tradition upon which this yearbook is based, it is crucial that we do not overlook the all important custom of Shidduchs/dating (only for Tachlis, of course). College graduation is a momentous occasion, not because we've earned degrees, but rather because by now we're all engaged or married. What? Not all of us are? Half the Freshman grade already is! Well, maybe we better take a look at some of the methods being used around here, "for better or for worse," TO GET A DATE! And remember, Im Yirtza Hashem by You!

The TOURO MUSTANGS

National Champions 1993

In only their seventh year in Division I, the Touro Mustangs emerged as a dominant force in the women's game. Although out (wo)manned and outsized, the Mustangs managed to scrape up victories through great defensive play and full court pressure. The defense was geared by two time All-American and Naismith finalist Sami Groff who led the country with 4.1 steals a game. Despite being an independent, the Mustangs played the most rugged schedule in the country. Losing the dynamic point guard Limor Mizrachi, a native Israeli, in the recruiting war with University of Maryland, things looked bleak from the start. It didn't help much that the Mustangs opened the season at College Park where Limor Mizrachi shone as she led Maryland to an impressive victory. The Mustangs returned home where they scored easy victories over Syracuse, Massachussetts, and Stern. Then, it was back on the road to the Lone Star State where they faced the twelfth ranked Longhorns of Texas and the sixth ranked Red Raiders of Texas Tech. The Mustangs trailed for much of the first half as they were being dominated on the glass. They turned to their 3 point specialists Bonnie Bernstein and Sami Groff as they connected for 10 of 14 treys to nip Texas 70-68. In perhaps the most impressive victory of the young season, the Mustangs controlled Cheryl Swoops and the rest of the Raiders and scored a 61-51 victory as Swoops was held to 7 points. Then, it was back home for the Touro Chanukka Classic where they hosted Columbia, Georgetown, and Manhattan. Behind the outstanding play of Tzipporah Herskowitz, the tournament MVP, the Mustangs cruised to two easy victories.

With a 7 and 1 record the Mustangs finally cracked the Top 25. The Mustangs began the month of January heading off to SCC land where they faced the #1 ranked Lady Volunteers of Tennessee, the Rebels of Mississippi, and the Tigers of Auburn. The Lady Vols dominated the smaller Mustangs from start to finish as they handed the Mustangs their worst loss in three years. The Mississippi game would probably go down as one of the greatest games in the history of the sport. With time running out and the Mustangs trailing by 3, Bonnie nailed a 3 pointer at the buzzer, forcing an OT. The teams battled through two more overtimes and in the third, behind the clutch foul shooting of Rebecca Wagshall, the Mustangs managed to eke out with a one point win. Next stop was Auburn where injuries hampered the Tigers all season long, and they bowed to the Mustangs by 10.

The Mustangs cruised through February with wins over Louisiana State, Toledo, Boston College, Nebraska, Pacific, Iowa State, UCLA, Rutgers, Loyola, and Brown. With a 19 and 2 record, the Mustangs were ranked 12th in the country. With the NCAA tournament knocking, the Mustangs closed out their regular season with a showdown against the top ranked Virginia Cavaliers. The first half was a seesaw battle as both teams went to the locker room tied at 40. It seemed as if the Mustangs would take control of the game as they opened the second half with a 16-7 run. However, fatigue started to set in as Virginia's 6'5" Twin Towers Heather and Heidi Burge controlled the offensive boards giving the Cavaliers many second opportunities. With 14 seconds to go Touro Captain Sami Groff made the front end of a 1 and 1 to put the Mustangs ahead by one. Unfortunately, she missed the second and the Cavaliers were able to win it on a fall away by Heidi Burge at the buzzer. It was a stunning defeat and probably cost the Mustangs a buy in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

The Mustangs were seeded 5th in the West where they were able to withstand a late Northwestern run and hold on to a 3 point victory. Next up was the heavily favored University of Southern Cal and their 6'6" center Lisa Leslie. Despite Leslie's 36 points and two dunks, the Mustangs were able to control most of the game, thanks to Stacey Volk's tough interior play, and to move into the Sweet Sixteen. Next up was the #1 ranked Stanford Cardinal which had returned five starters from last year's championship team. It seemed as if the Cardinal would roll in this game as Molly Goodenbour lit them up for 21 first half points. The Mustangs were forced to switch to a man in the second half to control Stanford's hot shooting. Captain Sami Groff led a torrid second half comeback as the Mustangs narrowed the gap to 2 points with only a minute to play. After a time out, the Mustangs got the ball at midcourt whereupon the 5'4" Andrea Fiderer slashed through the Cardinal defense and laid up an improbable shot and was fouled. She made the freethrows and the Mustangs led for the first time all game. The Cardinal had three opportunities to win the game but they came up short as the Mustangs advanced to the Final Four for the first time in school history.

The other three representatives in the Final Four were the Commodores of Vanderbilt with 6'8" center Heidi Gillingham, Big Ten Champs the Iowa Hawkeyes, and the Red Raiders of Texas Tech. The Mustangs were pitted against Vanderbilt. With Gillingham in foul trouble for most of the first half, the Mustangs were able to build up a huge halftime lead of 46-29. But Vanderbilt wouldn't quit as they began to rely on threes for their comeback. The Commodores managed to get within 6 but never closer as Rebecca Wagshall paced the Mustangs with a game high 26 points and 7 assists as the Mustangs rolled to a 83-74 victory.

In the other game, Swoops scorched Iowa for 45 points as the Red Raiders advanced to the finals and a rematch with the Mustangs. Despite their previous success against Swoops and the Raiders, the Touro Mustangs were still the underdogs in this championship game. The Mustangs opened up in an extended zone defense but the Raiders were able to break it down as Swoops connected on 9 of 11 shots for 24 points in the first half. Knowing that they needed a change the Mustangs opened the second half in a man to man with Sami Groff guarding Swoops. In the second half, the Mustangs were able to narrow the lead to 5 points with eight minutes left but with Sami picking up her 4th foul, things looked bleak. With Groff on the bench for the next 3 minutes, the Raiders built their lead up to 11 with under 5 minutes to play. The Mustangs were not about to quit as Andrea Fiderer and Tzipporah Herskowitz hit consecutive 3 pointers to cut the lead to 5. On the following possession Swoops turned it over and Jody Tabak took it in for a dashing layup and a foul. With the lead down to 2 and a minute and a half remaining, the Raiders called for time. They designed a play for Swoops and she was fouled. Swoops made both freethrows for her 44th and 45th points of the game, breaking Bill Walton's record from 1973, for most points scored in a championship game. Now, down by 4 with a minute left, the Mustangs got the ball to their All-American and she responded with a 3 pointer. Down 1, the aggressive Mustang defense forced a Texas Tech turnover and with 11 seconds to go they had a chance to win the championship. They called a clearout for Groff as the seconds ticked down. She crossed to her left and back to her right, pump faked, got Swoops in the air, and ducked in for a lean-in 8 foot banker just as the buzzer sounded to give Touro the national championship. In perhaps the greatest Cinderella story ever told, the Touro Mustangs showed great courage and heart in the march to the 1993 National Championships.

To our beloved Sami,

We are very proud of all your accomplishments. You are a student par excellence, a very hardworking Editor in Chief, a great sportswoman with zest, spirit and love of life and a committed Torah-Zionist Jew. But, most of all you are a loyal friend and a wonderful big sister and daughter. We love you!

Best wishes to the class of '93.

Love,

Mom and Dad, Danielle, Michelle and Michael

(and Tali)

To our wonderful and special daughter and sister,

Sabrina D. Gilbert

It is with great pride that we see you graduate from Touro with great honors. Your active involvement and dedication to this fine institution demonstrates your uniqueness. May Hashem continue to bestow on you His protection and give you strength in order to continue performing Chesed as your kind heart desires.

Love,
Mommy, Grandma, Rita, Erick, and Cory

Tamara, you've done it, you finally came through.
Now we're college graduates, both me and you.
You've completed and succeeded with style and grace
This Bachelor of Arts in this academic race.
To your family you've given much pride and joy,
And great pleasure and happiness to your own boy.
So sing and dance, for you deserve the praise
From those who love you and those you amaze.
Chiropractic is a way and you will be a leader;
An intelligent, true, and faithful healer.
Beautiful wife, loyal daughter and caring friend are you,
And with God's help a grand and strong mother too.
So let's enjoy and fulfill together life and its romance,
With all these parts to play and all these songs to dance.

Love Forever,
Bentzi

To my exceptional sister Sabrina,
MAZEL TOV!

Keep on ignoring the people who tell you that the sky is the limit. They're wrong, you passed that marker a long time ago and you're still soaring.

Love,

Sharon,

As I contemplate the words of this note,
No one but G-d "knows" how I feel, when I look at you from head to toe.

Your wit and smile have always been a source of sunlight to me,
And whatever the future holds for thee,
Never fret for you will always have your Touro degree.

Throughout the year I have watched you grow,
And as always, no matter what obstacles came before you, you still happened to keep a 4.0.

I am so proud of you.

Love,
Moshe
